

Strategy and Management Consulting Analyst Position Description, Arlington, VA

Who are we?

A high-end, boutique consulting firm focused on the defense, government services, and aerospace markets. Our team provides corporate strategy, market entry and forecasting, mergers and acquisitions, and competitive intelligence services to global corporate, private equity, and investment banking clients.

Who are we looking for?

We recruit at only top-tier undergraduate institutions. Successful applicants must demonstrate:

- A passion for the aerospace, defense, space, government services, or related technology sectors
- Strong analytical skills and comfort with complex quantitative analysis
- Curiosity, energy, positivity and the ability to work in teams and under dynamic conditions

Entry-level Analysts will join a group of multi-disciplinary senior consultants with decades of experience in their respective disciplines. They will work to support our global client base alongside talented peer analysts, associates, and senior staff. Daily activities will include primary and secondary source research, assembling and vetting budget and financial data and transforming it into usable information and models, as well as building client presentations. This high energy position will track, analyze and report on supply and demand-side issues that impact our clients' strategies and create value in this sector.

Why Renaissance Strategic Advisors?
